

PRESS RELEASE

The Dirty Robbers are back in action after a few years working on other projects and reshaping the band.

There is a new album on the way, Dirty and Horny which showcases the bands new sound and direction.

Oliver Darling (guitar,vocals) has been playing in The Imelda May Band for the past four years, touring in the UK, Europe, the Middle east and The USA.

Matt Empson (keys, vocals) has been playing Jerry Lee Lewis in the Westend Musical Million Dollar Quartet.

Alessandro Cinelli (drums, vocals) has been touring with his own band The Cinelli Brothers, and also working with Matt Schofield and Tania Tikaram.

Craig Rhind (bass, voclas) has toured previously with Dr Feelgood and Steve Marriott.

Oliver Darling out the band together originally in 2009, wanting to create a hard hitting tight band that played with attitude and skill, a gap which he felt there was in the market.

"I love a lot of the new bands and music around today, but feel they lack the swagger and style of the groups from what I think of as the golden era. Bands like The Rolling Stones and The Beatles learnt to play together first as blues and rock and roll bands, then started to develop their own identity, but retained the important key foundation of being able to groove together as a band. I think that's why the old bands that are still going like The Who and The Stones still stand out at festivals to every generation'.

The bands sound now embraces all those old flavours, as well as some interesting influence from The Meters and Ian Dury and The Blockheads to create a roots pop with a punk edge, coined Posh Punk.

Singles are being released from the new album along with accompanying videos;

Eggs (featuring Geraint Watkins) was released in April 19, and the video was filmed, directed and produced by talented young filmmaker Jack Elliott Hobbs.

Do You Love Me released in June 19 is a cover of an old Young Jessie track and features two gorgeous Burlesque Starlets, Ruby Deshabille and Lena Mae. The video for this one was put together by Ryan Aston.

The band are planning to release more singles and videos in 2019 before the album will be released in 2020.

There are also tours being planned.
